Acquiring Editors

Nicole Brebner, Editorial Director

E: Nicole.Brebner@HarperCollins.com T: (416) 840-3201

Proudest achievements: Heading our commercial fiction imprint and working with perennial bestselling authors. I love the discovery of new talent, and MIRA Books is home to many exciting debut voices.

I'm looking for: Issue-driven women's fiction, feel-good fiction and psychological suspense.

I'd love to find the next: Louise Penny, Daniel Silva, Kristin Hannah and Fredrik Backman.

April Osborn, Editor

Proudest achievements: I've had the opportunity to work with bestselling and award-winning authors in many genres, but no matter the genre, the best part of being an editor is finding authors who have something new to say about the world we live in and helping them bring their stories to life.

I'm looking for: Smart psychological thrillers from new perspectives, book club fiction with a contemporary edge and recent historical fiction based on true events.

I'd love to find the next: Chloe Benjamin, Kiley Reid, Alyssa Cole, and Christina Baker Kline.

MIRA Books is known for turning established and emerging authors into bestsellers.

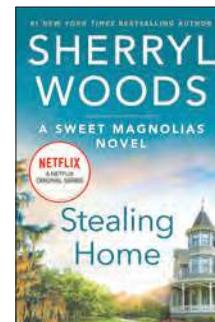

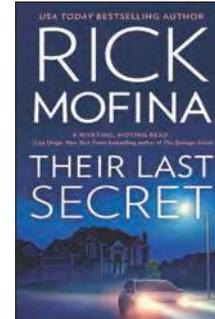

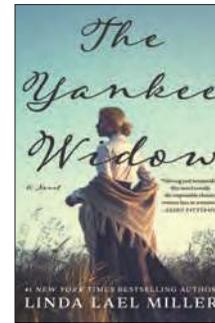

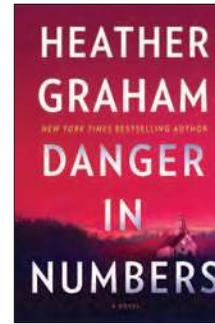

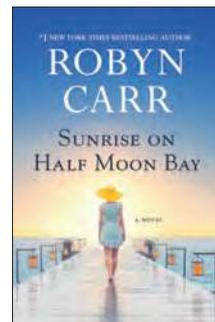

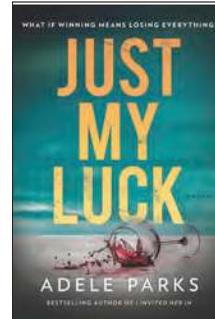

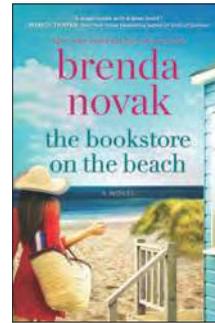

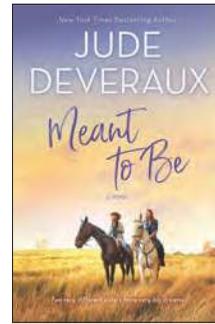

We publish approximately 50 original titles per year in hardcover, trade and mass market, and we are looking for highly commercial fiction across all genres, including but not limited to women's fiction, historical fiction, thrillers and suspense. Our imprint is committed to publishing an inclusive list that amplifies diverse and marginalized voices. In 2020, MIRA placed 76 titles on the New York Times, USA TODAY, Globe and Mail, and Publishers Weekly bestseller lists combined..

Agented submissions only, please.
